Faculty and Curriculum

Well-trained, articulate teachers who know how to present their subject matter, combined with a varied and challenging curriculum, have made our moments of strength, romance, glamour and youth a plethora of unforgettable occasions, most of them pleasant memories, but indeed, a few we prefer to forget. There are many exciting moments in the classroom, and during the high school years, there are many discoveries to be made. The same discoveries we made last year now lie in wait for a new young scientist, or linguist, or historian to find them again.

Will you ever forget the smell of formaldehyde? The hum of thirty tapes springing to life in the language lab? The first real poem you ever wrote—and let someone else read? The time you got an A in physics? The argument you lost in "Problems?" The beautiful day you went AWOL across the Lawrence Common, and walked smack into a teacher? Is the college of your choice even now ordering earthworms for you to dissect next fall?

In the following section, you will see the fine men and women who have influenced our lives over the last four years, who have shared with us their knowledge, and given generously of their strength. Whatever we may become, atomic scientist or sidewalk superintendent, wherever we may be, in Boston, or in Sydney, we shall look back with pride upon these years, and especially upon these people who molded us into what we were to be.

To the Graduates of the Class of 1970

The class of 1970 is graduating from high school at the beginning of one of the most exciting decades in history, when man has impatiently shaken the dust of earth from his feet, to set them softly down in the dust of the moon. In the last ten years, he has opened doors that have waited since the beginning of time for his hand; but beyond each door there is a new threshold, another quest, and the next decade awaits the skilled, talented and ambitious young men and women of today.

One of you may very well have locked in his intellect a cure for many of the world's ills; another may one day explore the path to Mars; yet another may have great leadership potential, and serve his country in high places.

This is the future I wish each of you—that you may realize your potential, whatever it is; whether a whole country, or perhaps the world benefits from your talent, or whether you perform the equally important job of keeping one family together and happy.

Enjoy the coming decade, work for it, possess it, make it yours.

It is my loss that my stay in the city has been too brief for me to know you personally, but I wish for all of you the full and rewarding life that awaits the ambitious and well-educated young man or woman of today.

Having the distinction of being the most widely spoken language in the world, English is also the most difficult to master. The aim of the Lawrence High School English Department is to produce young men and women who know their language, and who therefore have the ability to express themselves in either the written or spoken word with clarity and distinctness. To master a language, any language, takes long and concentrated work—and so it is with English. Word building, rules of grammar, wide, wide reading and extensive writing of paper after paper produce the complete American.

The ability to communicate is not, in itself, enough. Communication must be intelligent, explicit and thorough in a world where there isn't time to read anything twice. Our English Department wants its graduates to be right the first time!

ENGLISH COMPOSITION

The world today is becoming increasingly pre-fabricated, and man finds that many of the tasks he formerly performed are now being done by various machines and computers. It is important that he be encouraged to devote his reserve energy to some worthwhile purpose. By offering this writing course, the English Department has introduced him to the realm of creativity. Some students will undoubtedly use it as a means to an end—a higher test score; but to the individual who realizes the cathartic value of writing, it is a means whereby one can discover, understand and realize the self.

BUSINESS

As the world of business prospers, the need for well-trained personnel increases; as the competition grows keener, the modern business department must be constantly changing, to "keep up." With the possible exception of mathematics, no field has been invaded by the machine to a greater extent than the world of commerce. The excellent secretary will always be in demand, although her dictation may come from a tape recorder. Every business firm needs someone to keep the "books," even though she may use a bookkeeping machine to help with her computations. The Lawrence High School Business Department is well aware of the changes taking place in this field, and prides itself on the quality of the young people who leave to compete with their peers, well prepared to face the challenge.

Business Law, Typing

Almost from the moment one becomes a member of the business department, one is surrounded by machines. Typewriters? Of course, one could hardly enter the highly specialized world of business without learning to type—but there are so many more! One day, when we have time, we will count them.

The school visitor has no difficulty finding his way to the business department. There is the steady rhythm of the typewriters, beating a tribal rite of their own. It takes manual dexterity to belong to this tribe!

From the office machines room, the sound is muted, but it is there—keys being depressed, cards being punched. The duplicator and the mimeograph spew forth their printed messages. It is indeed often a message of doom to those of us who have not prepared adequately for an upcoming test.

There is mystery, and romance in the business department. A little card, once blank, with the addition of a few carefully p'aced holes can tell one's entire life story. An office machine can tell whether one is hired, or fired. No wonder this department insists upon careful preparation for the business world. In the midst of all these humming machines, it almost seems as if our fate were in their hands.

SOCIAL STUDIES

That study which affects us the most during our high school years, which broadens our understanding of our fellow man and shapes our attitudes toward him is undoubtedly Social Science. The field is a broad one, and covers man's history from the beginning of time to the present. It interprets the law, the Declaration of Independence, and the Constitution. It helps us to understand those perplexing, delicate intricacies that balance world power, and postpone complete obliteration for yet another day. It shows us how to succeed in the field of Human Relations where so many generations past have failed.

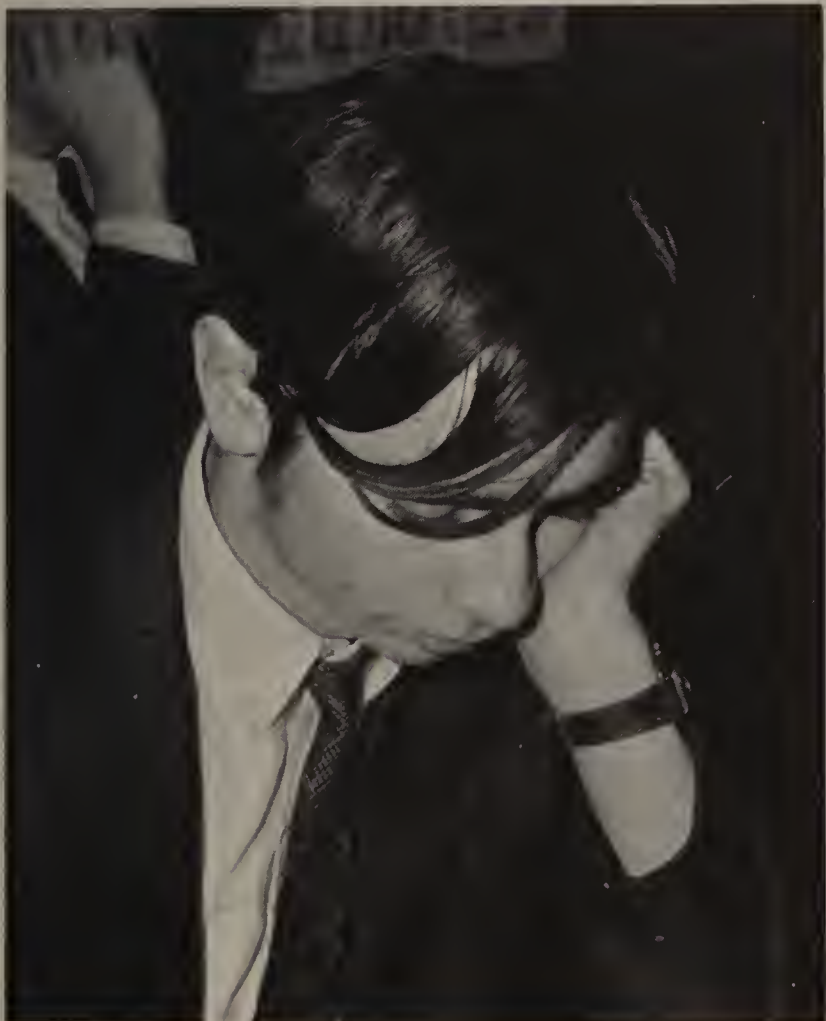

Our Social Studies Department offers courses in Ancient, World and U.S. History, Civics, Problems in Democracy, Economics and World Geography. If we ever do finally learn the lesson, and settle down to live in peace with all our neighbors, regardless of creed or color, it will be because we found the answers here.

Could anything be more modern than science? It explains the past and the present, and it predicts the future. It plunges us into such fascinating subjects as the limitless power of the atom, and then takes us by the hand to explain the wondrous workings of a single living cell. It brings the universe within our meager human grasp, from the virus, that bridge between the living and the non-living, to the stars and their galaxies millions of light years away. It reveals to us the laws of nature that have been harnessed by man to bring us radio and television, jet and rocket propulsion, refrigerators and automobiles. It teaches us to be curious, to think, to want to solve the new problems that appear with each new discovery.

Science teaches us humility, for what man, measuring himself against the universe, can fail to see his own size?

Coupled with science, math is the "now" thing. It is the common language of all nations and the tool of all scientists. Every day one reads of new uses for math in exploring the unknown and confirming the known. Using math, man has made a pinpoint landing on the moon, received excellent photographs and analyses of Mars, and probed deeper into the realm of the atom and sub-atomic particles.

The Computer Age is upon us and is demanding more and more mathematicians daily. The aerospace industry, the fastest growing industry in the world, constantly needs engineer-mathematicians to build such precision products as the supersonic transport.

The Lawrence High School Mathematics Department, with the help of the new computer lab, is constantly at work to provide its students with the latest and the best developments in the field. The pupil who works long and hard reaps limitless rewards.

LANGUAGES

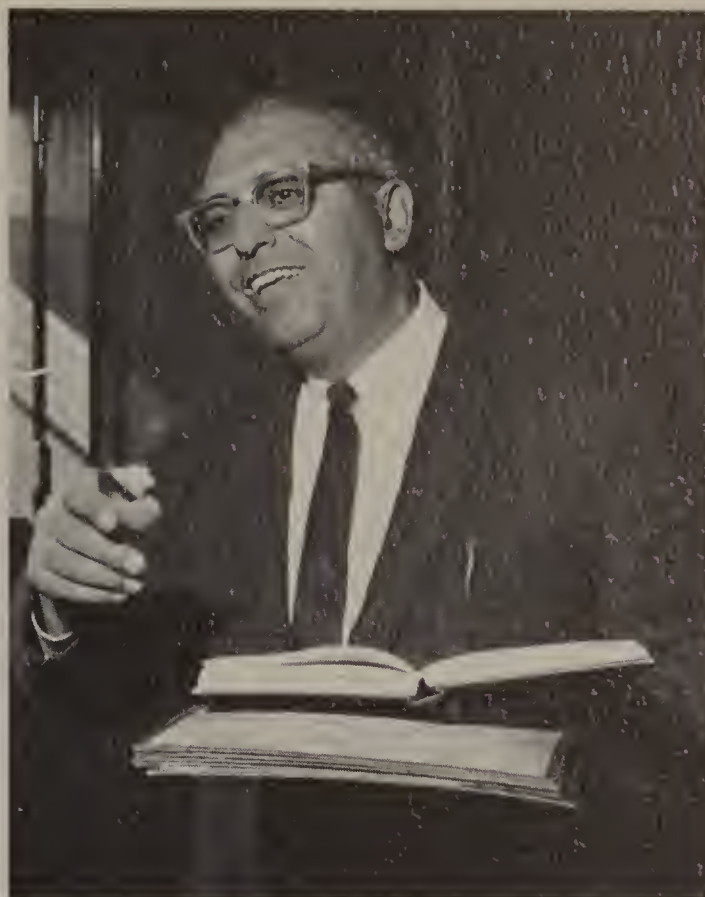

Few students are fortunate enough to grow up in bi-lingual homes, and yet it is to everyone's advantage to know a language other than his own. The Lawrence High School Modern Language Department provides the most modern, time-saving techniques available, including the long-awaited language lab, which was installed during our sophomore year. Any industrious pupil willing to devote the proper amount of time and effort can, within a few years, be well on his way to fluency in French, Italian, Spanish or German. Of course, it's hard work but the advanced student will tell you that nothing is more fun, or more rewarding, than learning to express yourself in another language.

John Hanavan is quite an operator.

Why so worried, Roberta?

The tape recorder and modern electronics have done more to advance and simplify the learning of a foreign language than any other invention known to man, except possibly the printing press. Our language laboratory is three years old this year. We looked forward to its installation eagerly, and those of us who have taken a foreign language and used it regularly over these years can testify to its effectiveness.

The first thing everyone wants to know is whether it is fun. Of course it is—but it is also work to concentrate with the intensity necessary to catch the foreign syllables pouring into one's ears. We can add that it is horrifying to hear the sound of a voice, remotely human, repeating the lesson with pathetic attempts at accuracy, to realize suddenly that the voice is one's own. It does have the affect of bringing to the listener with dramatic suddenness the need-to practice, and improve. We did both, and can report that the last tapes were a great improvement over the first. How did we ever get along before we had the lab?

GUIDANCE

"A friend in need is a friend indeed," the saying goes—and that is exactly our attitude towards the Guidance Department. The path to success for most students begins here. In the four years we have spent at Lawrence High School, we have found this department to be indispensable.

Incidentally, the Guidance Department is in a new location this year—it has expanded into the second floor locker room. The advice given us by Mr. St. Paul, Mrs. Ashburn, Mr. Sullivan, Mrs. Hammond, and of course, Mr. Walsh, has given us an excellent start toward our life's work—and we shall remember them when we enter our chosen professions. Now, on the threshold of the future, we would like to say, "Thanks."

Advice is always there in the guidance office.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

When President John F. Kennedy encouraged physical fitness, and made his country aware of the need for exercise, he challenged all young Americans. The emphasis in Physical Education today in a youth-oriented society is in the direction of the well-rounded individual, and away from the polarized "bookworms" and "musclemen." The amateurs in high school and college sports are beginning to challenge the professionals, in areas which formerly were considered the property of the "pros."

A good diversified program in Physical Education on the high school level is a must. Modern educational methods have produced the best developed and informed young intellects in our history. Modern physical education methods must produce finely-tuned bodies, ready to face both the stress of a frenetic world, and the challenge of expanding leisure time.

ART

Samples of artwork done in L.H.S.

Stimulating the student to work at his maximum is the goal, to be sure, of every teacher. With its carefully planned learning program, the Art Department aims to bring to the surface and develop the latent creativity in the student. Once aware of his potential, he is then encouraged to find the proper direction for his individual talent.

It is vital in this mechanized society that the individual be allowed to create, and thus maintain his identity. In order to accomplish this goal, a varied program with the dual purpose of holding the student's interest, and accomplishing ends which are truly worthwhile, is offered.

To the student who takes it seriously, art is an ever refreshing and always meaningful experience.

LATIN

The most useful key to ages past is Latin, the language of the Roman Empire. It has unlocked the secrets of ancient civilizations in Europe, Asia Minor and Northern Africa. It has provided the roots for every major European language. It has universality in a world which gets smaller by the day if one thinks in terms of jet-propelled planes, but which draws further and further apart if one thinks in terms of ideologies. As a spoken language, one must accept the fact that Latin is dead—and one cannot help but wonder whether the world would be more united if we all spoke this ancient and beautiful language, and had at least that in common.

As long as there exists a soul who appreciates what Latin has done for civilization—and there will always be such people among the scholars of the world—Latin cannot die. It will continue to live, as it lives every day in our curriculum.

LIBRARY

"Is it true LeBlonds have more fun?" "Yes, I like that one," says Nancy.

In 1964, when Lawrence High School was evaluated, the school was advised that the library lacked sufficient reference material. In 1969, the same evaluators lauded the administration for adding the suggested reference books to the shelves. The library should be the heart of the high school, for it encourages the student's interest in acquiring new knowledge through research. A man once said that it is not how much you know that counts, but whether you know how and where to find the needed information. The library provides a place to look, and find, and this is the most enlightening process in man's education.

Would you dare?

Because the high school is an institution which prepares young people for life, it must strive to meet the needs of a wide array of interests, and not limit itself to the purely academic. The Home Economics course was founded to equip the young woman who will come face to face with life, and find herself keeping house, preparing daily menus, going food shopping, and raising children. Since this is the most influential role a woman can play in life, and the most satisfying, the Home Economics course offers her the ideal, and gives her the training, and hopefully, the inspiration, to reach it.

PUBLIC SPEAKING

It is in our senior year that we begin to acquire a little polish, by devoting one period a week to Public Speaking. Until that time, the idea of addressing a group of people leaves us terrified. The transitional period between fear and confidence is directed by Miss Shine, whose wonderful personality and gentle encouragement somehow bring us poise at last! Success, nevertheless, comes neither quickly nor easily, for one must spend many hours preparing and delivering extemporaneous, impromptu and instructional speeches.

The result, after a year's hard work, is confidence in self—a young adult's most important commodity.

MUSIC

It may be an old cliché, but it is still true—music is fun for everyone! However, fun is the by-product, and enrichment of the cultural background is the aim of the junior course in Choral Music. We all listened to and sang both modern pop hits and old favorites that will endure forever. We enjoyed the classical rhythms of Beethoven and Bach, and the weird but beautiful theme music of "2001: A Space Odyssey."

Everyone had the project of choosing a song of his liking, and writing his own lyrics, carefully preserving the scansion in the poetry and the rhythm of the tune. Many embryonic lyricists emerged triumphantly with songs more than worthy of Tin Pan Alley.

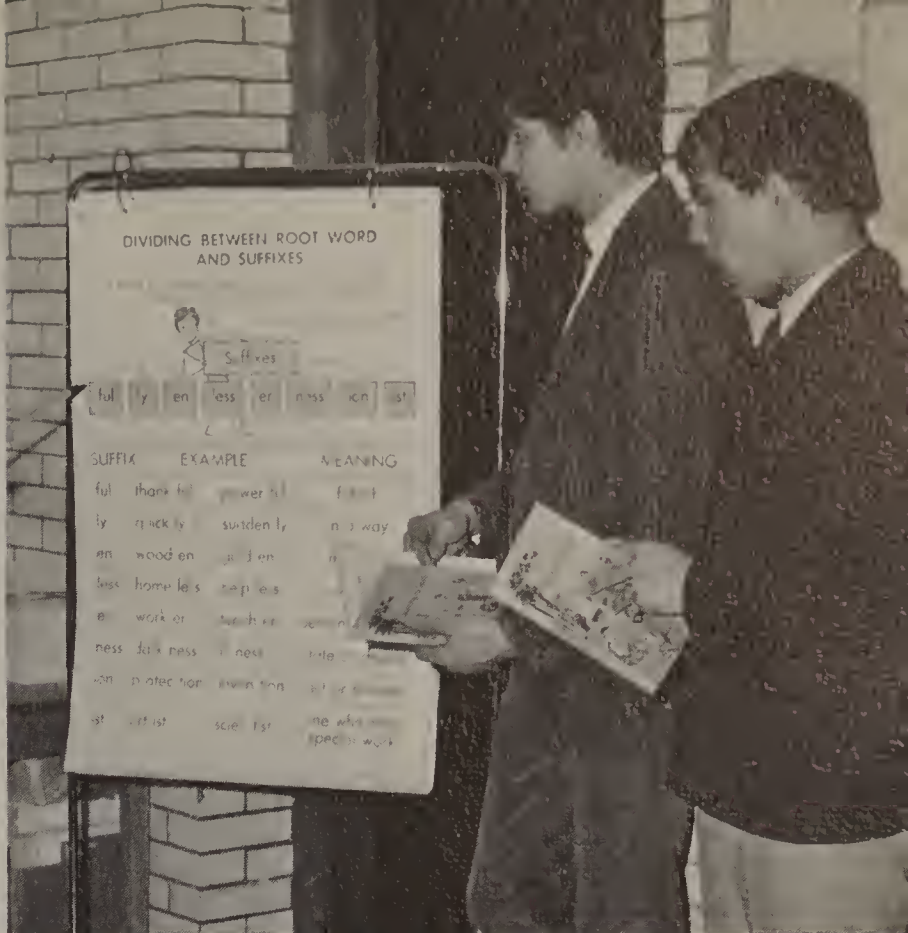

What a rewarding career it must be to devote one's life to music!

Non-English Speaking Students

Getting the basics is most important to learning English.

NON-ENGLISH SPEAKING

Acquiring fluency in a language other than your own is no easy process. It is particularly difficult if the strange language is thrust upon you in your adopted country, where you find that you must learn quickly to communicate at all—to make friends, to go to school, to buy a loaf of bread.

Our government, in financing programs to help new citizens find themselves, has taken a giant step against ignorance. These youngsters now have the opportunity to prove that they do know something, even if they don't know it in English—and they are learning the English together, properly. Can there be anything worse than finding yourself in a classroom listening to a teacher speak a language you don't understand at all?

Soon they will be taking their places in classrooms where their new language is spoken, and they will be ready, and they will understand, and they will learn.

Welcome home, new American citizens!

School Life

A typical day at Lawrence High School begins at 8:10, and ends at 2:00. Routine admission and dismissal procedures are probably the only characteristic it shares with any other high school. All that happens between these hours is truly unique.

Locker rooms have proven to be the equivalent of yesterday's "Teen Hangouts." During the wee hours of the morning, between 7:50 and 8:05 the halls echo the sound of slamming graffiti-covered locker doors, and books cascading to the floor. Today, these compartments house not only conventional school supplies and wearing apparel, but also apparatus used for Public Speaking talks, and one's "best buddy's" books.

The three minute bells which ring between periods were invented by some fiendish devil who knew that no one on just two legs could get from room 100 to room 412 in that time.

Truly, here were our least inhibited moments of youth. Lines in the cafeteria were long, and we looked for ways to beat the "establishment" and get at the front, but nine times out of ten, we failed. It always seemed that when we had indoor recess, we would have preferred to go outdoors, and of course, when we HAD to go outdoors, we would have been happier inside.

We made many freinds, a great deal of noise and sometimes a bit of mischief. At this writing, it looks as though we will also make graduation, and the time has come to admit that we will leave with regret all of the things that have made up our school life.

Everyone's favorite period is Recess, as the happy faces of Nina Levesque and Laurie Athayd show.

"Won't you smile a little smile for me?" Glenn Fleming asks Terri Lucas.

Walter Lake asks Miss Weisman and Jim Sullivan, "Would you like to see the ol' rabbit in the pocket trick?"

Rose Coco opens one of the many "spacious metallic closets."

Jimmy Craig displays his tough morning schedule.

"She did it," say Linda Geddes and Kathy Martin.

Sue Riese and Shelly Gilboard know that the best place to "people watch" is in the locker room.

"Hey, who turned the water off?" asks Linda Moriarty.

Mike Noone and Elliot Turransky settle a wager.

John Joaquin wonders whether he should take two.

Dennis Boyd courageously attacks a double lunch.

Sharon Mickee and Richard Hamel complete the "sale of the day."

Dwaine Blouin and Sandy Borrelli wonder if they'll ever be off their diets.

John McCann tells us that it isn't very easy to sleep with your eyes open while standing up.

Alex Lawn asks Jane Greenberg what she is doing at 2 o'clock.

Eileen Hughes and Susan Harvey seem to say "If we move will this wall collapse?"

Carla Olson, enthusiasm personified.

Al Pelletier suppresses a smile.

Tom Paulinca, Joe Saad, Alex Lawn, Danny Palermo, and Jim Silverman caught off guard.

Marcia Mandell hides from the world behind her glasses.

Mr. Brennan keeps our pages clean.

Extra-Curricular

It's two oclock at last, and we can head for home—but wait! Isn't there a History Club meeting in 307? It never fails. The day that everyone feels like flying right out of the building when the last bell rings, naturally, there's a club meeting.

We cannot deny, however, that those extra-curricular activities provide some of our most memorable moments. Do you remember that first Biology Club meeting when everyone in the senior class rushed to 413 to register? How about those early morning practices for the Glee Club and the Band? What soprano could ever hit high C at seven-thirty A.M.? Will you ever forget the feeling you had when you were part of the crowd, cheering a school team on to victory? As long as you live, will you ever yell louder than you did at the faculty-varsity hockey game? Can anything equal that "on-with-the-show" glamour that comes from acting in the senior play? Remember the articles you wrote for the "Lawrencian?" How about the time you stood patiently for hours, just to get your picture in the yearbook? Did you go on the field trip to New York?

It was all worth the effort. It was all part of the "young" time. We will miss youth when it is gone. We used it as an excuse for so many things. It is easy to say, "We were young and foolish." Somehow, "Foolish" alone doesn't seem quite so attractive. When we look back on all this, it will be the time for a sigh.

STUDENT CONGRESS

The school year 1969-70 marks a milestone in the history of Lawrence High School. It is the first year of the Student Congress. Like any other young organization, the Student Congress is treading softly until it gains direction, but even in its first year, it has been responsible for several changes in the school. No one mourns the loss of the old restrictive dress code, which was banished to the hinterlands by a committee composed of the originators of the idea and Student Congress Reps. We hope that in the future the Student Congress will bring about many improvements in the lot of the Lawrence High School, and that the excellent relationship that now exists between the administrators of the school, and this student body will continue indefinitely.

Senior Class Officers and Home Room Representatives

The position of Senior Class President has always been the most honorable and responsible office one could hold in Lawrence High School. There are many activities in our last year that we want to remember, as smoothly executed memory makers—the prom and class day are two of them. The class officers and home room reps have for many years acted as liaison between the senior class and the Administration in these matters, and they have traditionally done their job well.

This year, the very same group was chosen as the nucleus for the new Student Congress, where they have new avenues of communication, and hopefully will do an even better job than they have in the past. In this, the first experimental year, their activities school-wide have centered around the change in the dress code, and at this writing, everyone is beginning to think of end-of-the-year-activities. Thus far, they have served us well and set a good example for the new officers to come in next year's senior class. Let us hope that we finish the year in the same grand style that we have lived it until now.

How about a trip to Paris? A boat ride on the Seine? Well, if it isn't possible, why not join the French Club? It's the next best thing. Everyone dreams of travelling to far away places, and somehow, France is the culmination of all those dreams. You can drift across the Atlantic listening to a dreamy tape; you can find yourself at the flower market, and almost smell the flowers on the posters, and in the books. You can perfect your accent, and be prepared for THE moment, when it comes. If you are studying French, you are welcome in the French Club. LATIN CLUB

Think of the word "Latin" for a second or two. What is the next image that comes into your mind? Do you think of those souls of great intellect who value history and language enough to wrestle with this ancient tongue? Can you imagine anyone producing a newspaper written entirely in Latin? The Latin Club does it. Of course, the members are in the exalted position of being perfect—for which of us lowly, ignorant human beings could catch them making a mistake? Seriously, the intellectual level is high and the competition in word games is stiff—no sissies need apply! Our students get consistently high grades in the college boards in Latin. They must all be members of this august club. Mr. Kiernan's paternal eye watches over all the proceedings.

Gee, I wonder how they used to say "Sock it to me?"

How well did Minerva know her Latin?

Let's pass the peace pipe.

Among people who have travelled all over the world, Germany is one of the most popular countries. They say the scenery is the most beautiful, and the people the most charming and industrious. It is perhaps because of these characteristics that members of the "Deutsche Verein" find themselves eager to discover more about this fascinating country, its geography, its language and its people. They enjoy occasional field trips to sample the food and view the movies. They play word games to increase and perfect their vocabularies. Occasionally, for a yearbook picture, they take a playful pull on an empty pipe, or wave a beerless stein in the air. They have fun, and learn something as well—and that's what the German Club is all about. Mrs. McComisky advises.

SPANISH CLUB

The Spanish Club has always served a useful purpose for those who were studying the language of this romantic country, to familiarize them with the customs and history of Spain and South America. However, in the last few years, this organization has acquired new meaning, as a "home away from home" for our new Spanish-speaking students. It is the one place, outside their own homes, where they can be truly comfortable; it is the one place where they can be a source of information, and answer questions, instead of asking them. It is the one place where they can help others to speak Spanish, in exchange for being helped in English. Meetings have a truly international, and fraternal flavor. The exchange of ideas, regardless of the language spoken, is fruitful, and rewarding for both Spanish-born and American-born. Spanish Club meetings are a continuing exercise in brotherhood.

GLEE CLUB

Steven Andrews asks Henrietta Robinson the musical question, "Will you still need me when I'm 64?"

You say you hear voices raised in song? You say you must be hearing things—no one feels like singing at seven-thirty in the morning. You are right—and wrong! Yes, you do hear voices raised in song, and these people certainly do feel like singing. It's the Glee Club. They're always singing happily, no matter where, no matter when. They sing before school, when most people are still trying to wake up. They sing at lunch time, when most people are concentrating on the digestive processes. They sing at concerts; in the halls at Christmas time; on the Lawrence Common; with the band; without the band; they just sing, sing, sing.

The Glee Club has a feeling of esprit de corps that is not there in other groups; perhaps it is because they all wake up together every morning. In any case, this group is one of the liveliest and happiest in the high school. The director responsible for the success of this great gathering of talented people is Miss Mary Lanigan.

Henrietta Robinson, Steve Andrews, Susan Cullen and Fred Russell appreciate this method of finding the beat.

Members discuss Italy, its culture and language, sing Italian carols at the creche on the Common, and plan various field trips to enhance their knowledge and love of Italy.

Two ladies in need, Paula Parnagian and Odette Hamoui, supposedly helped by John Stundza, a friend indeed.

"Hi. My name is Manuel. What's yours?" Simple? In the United Foreign Language Club, those few words are said in any of eight or ten languages, but the important thing is that they are said in the native tongue of a non-English speaking student. Based on the premise that there is nothing more difficult or confusing than being surrounded by people with whom one has not yet learned to communicate, this group of bi-lingual students organized to welcome the non-English speaking pupil to the High School. They chatter in many languages, but the most important, and the most obvious and the most popular common denominator is the language of friendship.

BAND

The Lawrence High School Band, one of our most active organizations, begins practice for a very busy fall and Christmas season as soon as school opens in September.

Seemingly endless hours of rehearsal, both in school and at the stadium, prepare members for the football season.

Next on the docket is Christmas. This year's superbly performed concert, accompanied in part by the Glee Club, consisted of a variety of Christmas carols, including old favorites and some from abroad.

For the Spring concerts, after exhaustive rehearsals, the band tours the local schools playing for pupils and teachers alike.

A busy year comes to a climax on Alumni Night, when the band and Glee Club play once more for the "Old Grads."

GIRLS' DEBATING SOCIETY

The fact that girls stop talking only when they are asleep is commonly known and not debatable. This is why the society was organized in 1920—to bring logic and reason into this constant chatter.

The girls meet, under the guidance of Miss Julia McCarthy, every other Wednesday evening in the Hall. They discuss and debate such current problems as the advent of the computer age, the availability of Federal Funds for the new Lawrence High School and Urban Renewal in Lawrence. Some of the benefits derived from a year in this organization are poise, control of voice and emotion, logical thinking and charm. Well worth it!

"It's folly to be too wise," says Marsha Christ to Carla Olson and Diane Severin.

BOYS' DEBATING SOCIETY

A small, select group of young men, under the guidance of Mr. Lucas, continue the traditions of the Boys' Debating Society, the oldest club in Lawrence High School. Whatever his plans for the future, the young man with well-developed ideas which he can articulate easily is one step ahead of the competition. The debates are lively, and sometimes transcend the rules, but the members feel that they profit enormously from this fraternity of fast talkers.

The Speakers Club, under the direction of Miss Marian Shine, meets the first Wednesday of each month. Members discuss and debate various events and ideas, including this year the plight of the American Indian, the war in Viet Nam, pollution, and the educational T.V. series, "Sesame Street."

One of the highlights of the year occurs when members share secrets with Miss Shine, which other members must guess. The club is a "must" for those seniors who are concerned about the world in which they live.

BIOLOGY CLUB

Everyone who studies Biology or Botany has to see the Agassiz Museum at Harvard at least once—it's sort of the biological equivalent of a baseball pilgrimage to Coopers-town. Every spring, the Biology Club, 100 or so strong, makes its annual trek to Cambridge, and spends a day being guided through this truly remarkable museum.

This is not the only activity of the club, but it takes the most organization. In general, the aim of the Biology Club is to broaden the knowledge of this science among its members. There is time at meetings to study, discuss and argue about matters for which there is no time in class. Members find that their time is well spent here, and every year the membership seems to grow.

MATH TEAM

Lawrence High School's varied math courses, coupled with well-trained teachers provide the background for the Math Team, whose members are chosen for their individual abilities in mathematics.

Each meet consists of five rounds, Arithmetic, Algebra 1, Algebra 2, Geometry and Trigonometry. Each member must be dedicated, talented in math, and devoted to the maxim, Practice makes perfect. The latter is especially true for members of the Math Team who, each year, enhance LHS's position in the State League.

A high school without majorettes? Unimaginable! Also beyond the imagination are the long hours of practice and drill that the girls must endure to produce the precisely tuned group known as the Lawrence High School Majorettes. They announce the arrival of the band at every football game, appearing on the field with their cool, crisp march. Using both new and old world customs as a basis for their routines, they keep fans glued to their seats between halves with their lively entertainment. They also perform in parades, field days and various exhibitions. Wearing their new uniforms, the majorettes present a pleasing new look wherever they go, as fresh and young as today. Lawrence High is proud to call them its own.

THANKSGIVING RALLY

Every year, the first really, really big event in the fall is the Thanksgiving rally. Everyone looks forward to it, for a chance to display his school spirit, and also, we must admit, because it signals the beginning of the first long week-end of the school year. This year, the spirit was there in the cheering, and the excellent job done by the Pep Club. Dr. Lindquist said a few words of encouragement, as did Mayor Kiley. Certainly, we let the team know we were behind them 100%, win or lose.

PEP CLUB

This year's Pep Club has done a tremendous job of boosting the morale of our football team. Its ingenious displays at both the Central and Lowell rallies promoted school spirit in abundance. The club's attendance in a group at the football games to cheer and yell, and urge the team on to victory never fails to get results, if not in a win, then at least in awareness on the part of the team that the stands are full of fans. Whenever school morale seems to be flagging, the Pep Club can be counted upon to get to work and cheer, cheer, cheer!

Faculty-Student Hockey Game

We think it was Mr. St. Paul's idea, and if it was, he deserves a lot of credit, for giving everybody the event of the year, 1970. No one honestly expected that the faculty could win, playing against our young, rugged, expert team—and they didn't, but they were great sports, and they played a marvelous, funny exciting game. Who will ever forget Mr. Hale with his big hockey stick, covering the cage completely, or Mr. Driscoll, teetering on his first pair of ice skates, and raising his hands in a signal of victory, for just being able to stand up on them? We could go on and on, but let us just say, "Thank you"—not for the money you donated to our cause, although that was very nice—it was the crowd, the excitement, the fun and the spirit. Let's do it again next year!

Sports

Somewhere in that star-spangled space between Mom's apple pie and the girl next door come high school sports. Whatever one's feelings about them, sports certainly are an American tradition. What really is the purpose of an athletic program for high schools? Is it just an outlet to blow off steam? Hardly. The purpose of sports is the same as any other branch of education—to teach.

One of the first things an athlete learns upon participation in a sport is self-sacrifice. Many hours must be given to practice, and at practice an athlete must train hard, or he finds himself sub-standard. Another thing every athlete learns is team play. Many people who have never participated in group activities before learn that the individual must forget himself for the welfare of the team.

Probably one of the most important aspects of athletics is the winning and losing. Many people think that the aim of sports is to win. This is not exactly true. The aim of sports is effort—not half-hearted effort, but an all-out self-sacrificing sort of effort that wrings every ounce of ability from every player from star to bench warmer. If this sort of effort results in wins, that is fine; but a losing team is just as successful if that intangible spirit and all-out effort are there.

Long after the records are forgotten, the lessons learned by the athlete—how to win, and how to lose, will be put to use in daily life. The object is, as Rudyard Kipling put it, to "... meet with Triumph and Disaster, and treat those two imposters just the same."

When the class of 1970 is just a fond memory, we'll all remember that moment of strength, victory, defeat, glamour and sacrifice that is the essence of high school sports.

FOOTBALL

The 1969 edition of the Lawrence High Lancers had a 2-7 record, but that doesn't tell the whole story. Several of those losses were close until a bad break set the tide against the Blue and White, and one was an outright steal. That now famous steal, of course, was against the Witches of Salem.

The Witches were undefeated and considered one of the top teams in the state when Lawrence invaded Salem in the role of heavy underdogs. The Lancers, however, played their finest game of the season and at halftime they led 7-0. That's the way it stayed until the final period when the overdue Witches scored and with the conversion, went ahead 8-7. The Lancers got into field goal position, however, and with seconds remaining, kicker Dave Teggart booted one that many neutral observers in the end zone swore was good. The referee, however, said it was wide and Salem escaped with an 8-7 disputed victory.

The two LHS victories were a 17-0 whitewash of Lynn English and a 42-6 pasting of crosstown rival Central Catholic. Some of Head Coach Fred Dennen's key performers were linemen Pete Roberts and Nick Fortune, quarterback Randy Hart, halfback Ray Preston, and kicker Dave Teggart.

Although the record was not impressive, the Lancers gave the fans some exciting moments and the team need apologize to no one for its determined efforts.

BASKETBALL

The 1969-70 edition of the Lawrence High Basketball team was not a winning team as their 0-18 record shows. The Lancers, who play their games in the tough Essex County League, came close to victory several times during the season, but luck kept it just beyond their reach. The win-loss record, however, does not necessarily measure the success of a team.

Contrary to the belief of some, the aim of high school athletics is not merely to win, but never to give up. By this standard, a team that wins all of its games except one, which it loses from lack of effort is not as good as a team that loses them all but tries every time. To fatten up a win column may not teach a player anything about life, but to try again after repeated disappointments probably will.

In basketball, as in any other sport, the winner has more fun, but the loser learns more.

The Lancers did, however, have a few outstanding performers. Jim Sullivan and Nick Fortune were two heavy scorers for Lawrence through the season as was Jay O'Neil, who will return next year.

Head Lancer Basketball Coach Fred Moriarty ponders the team's next move.

WRESTLING

One of the few winning teams at Lawrence High this year was the 1969-70 wrestling team. The matmen competed in the Northeastern Massachusetts Section, which is the toughest in the state as evidenced by the fact that the state crown has been taken by teams from this section for four straight years. One of the highlights of the season was an upset drubbing of rival, Haverhill by 33-15 and a rout over North Andover, 44-6. This was the first year that Lawrence has beaten North Andover in wrestling.

Joe Saad and Alex Lawn served as co-captains over the season and the top regular season scorer was Mickey Schiavone with 58 pins.

In the Northeastern Massachusetts Sectional Tournament the Lancers were led by Lawn, Schiavone and freshman Mike Rozumek. Lawn and Schiavone took second places and Rozumek pulled a pair of major upsets in overtime to capture 4th. Lawn's 12 pins was team high as the Blue and White finished 7th of 16 teams. The Lancers probably would have finished higher had it not been for Co-Captain Joe Saad suffering a concussion at the end of the regular season. As a result, he couldn't make the sectionals and Lawrence was weakened considerably. At one time in the regular season, Saad had a winning streak of 8.

Lawrence High School had two wrestlers comparing in the State championships at Lowell Tech; Mike Rozumek and Co-Captain Alex Lawn.

In spite of numerous injuries, Head Coach Bob Fitzgerald, and Assistant Coach Norm Salem molded a winning and high spirited team.

HOCKEY

The Lawrence High Hockey Team for 1969-70 set out to defend its Twin State hockey crown this year, but Head Coach Jim Byrne had a rebuilding job to do and the Lancers ended a respectable 4th with a record of 5-9-1.

Some of the top performers on the squad were Tri-Captains Bob Rozumek, Alan Pelletier, and John Glendye along with consistent scorer Bernie Cyr. High points during the season were 9-0 and 6-0 peltings of Fitchburg and Lawrence Regional respectively.

With a little luck, the Lancer's record might have been quite a bit better. Many losses were close such as 2-1 and 3-2 losses to Lowell and 4-3 and 5-4 losses to Ipswich. It's easy to see how these close games could have turned out differently.

Lawrence would have had a chance for the playoff crown had it not been for the withdrawal of Ipswich and the subsequent cancellation of the playoffs.

TRACK

Another season of competition in the North Shore Indoor Track League has been completed with the Lancers making a creditable showing. The tracksters, under the direction of new Head Coach Joseph Twoomey, finished with a 4-4 record. After a heartbreaking, one-point loss to rival Lowell, the undaunted Lancers came back to win a grudge meet with Haverhill, who had beaten them a year ago.

Leading point scorer Jim Kent had a typically excellent season. Jim won the State Meet, and travelled to New York, where he placed ninth in the entire Eastern Seaboard. Co-Captains Bob Morency and Dan Shlakis were consistent point getters. Bob was unbeaten in dual meets, and went on to win the first annual tri-league meet. Dan, who placed sixth in the State Meet, also finished a creditable fifth in the North Shore League Championships. For the younger runners, experience that is ever so valuable was attained so that in the next years of competition the edge will be ours.

Track affords an excellent opportunity for a boy who wants to put time and effort into an endeavor and get results. The performers are almost invariably the hardest workers, and this can be seen on any team, no matter what the sport may be.

Bob Sullivan holds a slight edge over teammate Jim O'Connor in the mile run.

Distance runner Jim Kent wins his event in an impressive clocking.

Paul Alsup was a consistent point getter in both the shotput and hurdles.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

One of the newer programs in Lawrence High's expanding athletic scene is girls' basketball. In the beginning, the program was composed of a handful of girls playing a few games after school, but soon their coach, Mrs. Sallie Reynolds, was arranging games against No. Andover, St. Anne's and St. Mary's.

After this informal season was completed, the girls played in the Silver Cup tournament at the Lawrence YWCA, and won first place against other area girls' teams. The girls hope to play a formal schedule next season, and will also try for more games.

Granted, this season was just a few games but it was a beginning of what we hope will be a full scale athletic program for girls, which LHS has been lacking for some time.

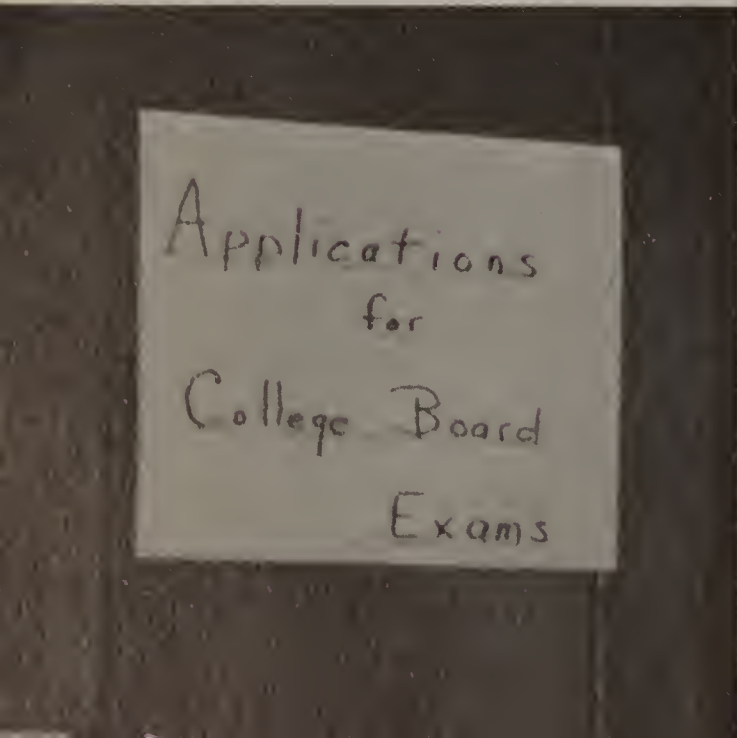

June Kfoury works on defense.

Karen Abate brings ball downcourt.

Corliss Andrew heads downcourt for a pass.

Senior Section

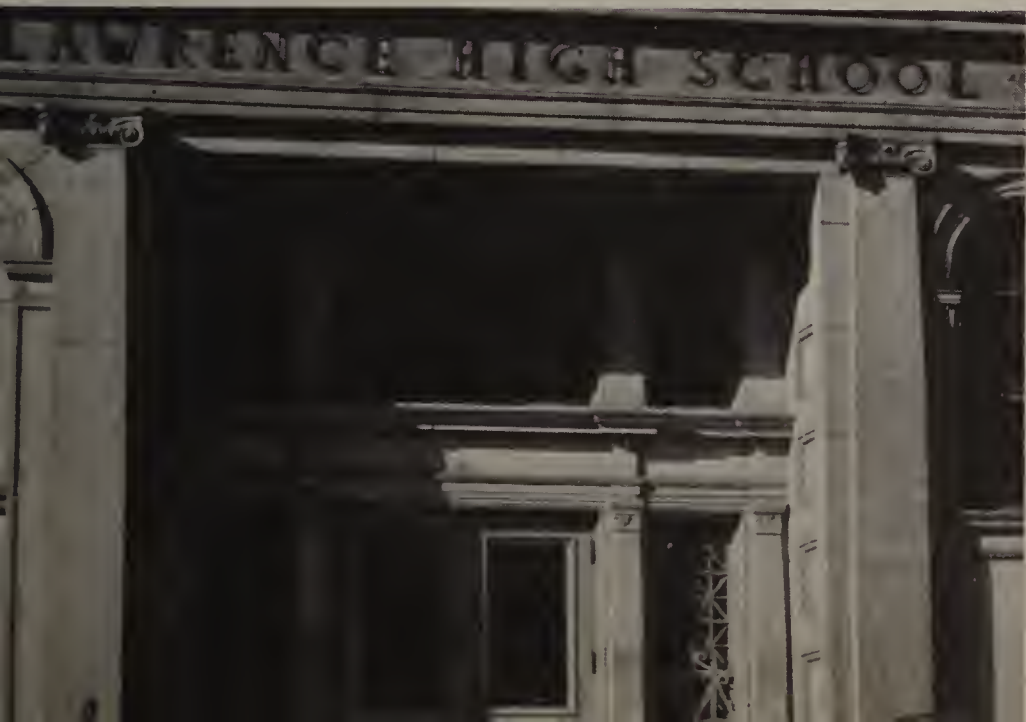

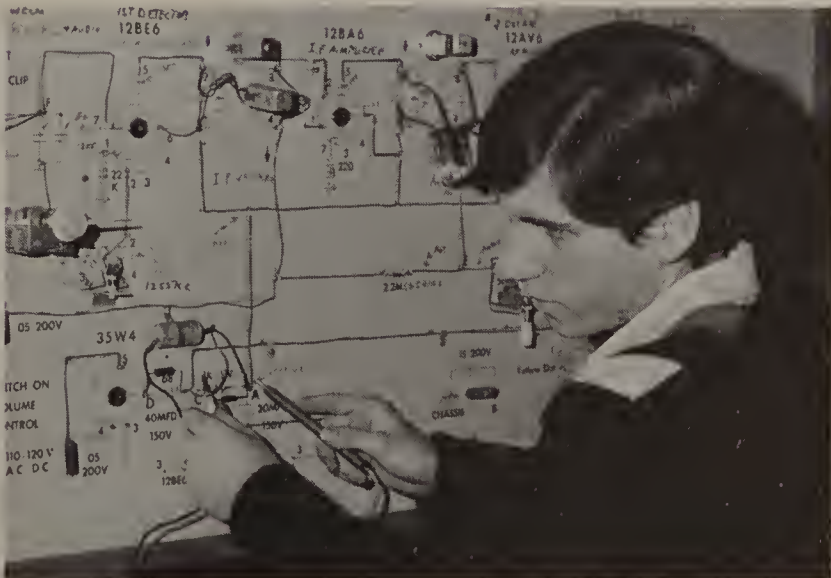

"Only a moment" is precisely what these past four years at Lawrence High School have been.

Do you remember that dreadful moment in Biology when each pupil had to dissect—ruthlessly—an innocent frog? With determination, horrified students carefully pinched each animal to insert the scalpel, and after breath-taking, heart-stopping seconds the poor beasts lay dextrously massacred.

Do you remember that exciting afternoon at the football game when the contest's final outcome, a regrettable defeat, was determined by a field goal? It took only a moment for the ball to cover the distance to the goal posts, and bring a disastrous decision from the referee.

As our last year in high school ends, a hopefully bright, yet unknown future awaits each of us. Graduation Day is much more than a diploma-receiving affair. It is the beginning, that first flick of sunshine of every senior's life. It is a day and a time of sharing cherished moments with one's true friends.

Yes, we will all remember—not everything, and not everybody. Each of us will remember the moments that were important to him, that had an influence on his life; that's the way it's supposed to be. We will meet again, at some future time, and we will have matured, and changed, and lived completely different lives from what we have known until now. We will enjoy remembering these years, and we will laugh at things that today might make us cry. We will remember the moments . . . all the moments. . .

Making things happen at Raytheon.

Today, at Raytheon we are finding an extra measure of challenge and excitement. In addition to working at the forefront of advancing technology, we are continuing the search for opportunities to transfer technology from one area to another.

We have, for example, found a way to use submarine sonar technology in the offshore search for oil.

Our long experience in radar technology has led to the amazing Radarange® microwave oven for the home. While exploring new methods for cooling high power electronic tubes, we developed a miniature furnace, the size of a two-pound coffee can, so efficient it can heat a nine-room house.

These are just some of the things happening at Raytheon, a science-based company now employing more than 50,000 talented people around the world.

At Raytheon, the future looks even more exciting and challenging.

Senior Thesis

I. Thoughts about the hereafter

(or . . . Is there a life after graduation?)

Seriously, graduation isn't the end, you know. It's just the beginning. And it could be the beginning of one of the most challenging and fulfilling times of your life. At New England Telephone. It could be, that is, if you want a job with a challenge as big as your ambition. We need people at New England Telephone — all kinds. People who are sincerely interested in the future. And who are looking for more from their job than just work! Your starting salary is good and you get automatic raises. You don't need experience! Your advancement is tailored to your talents. And you get excellent fringe benefits.

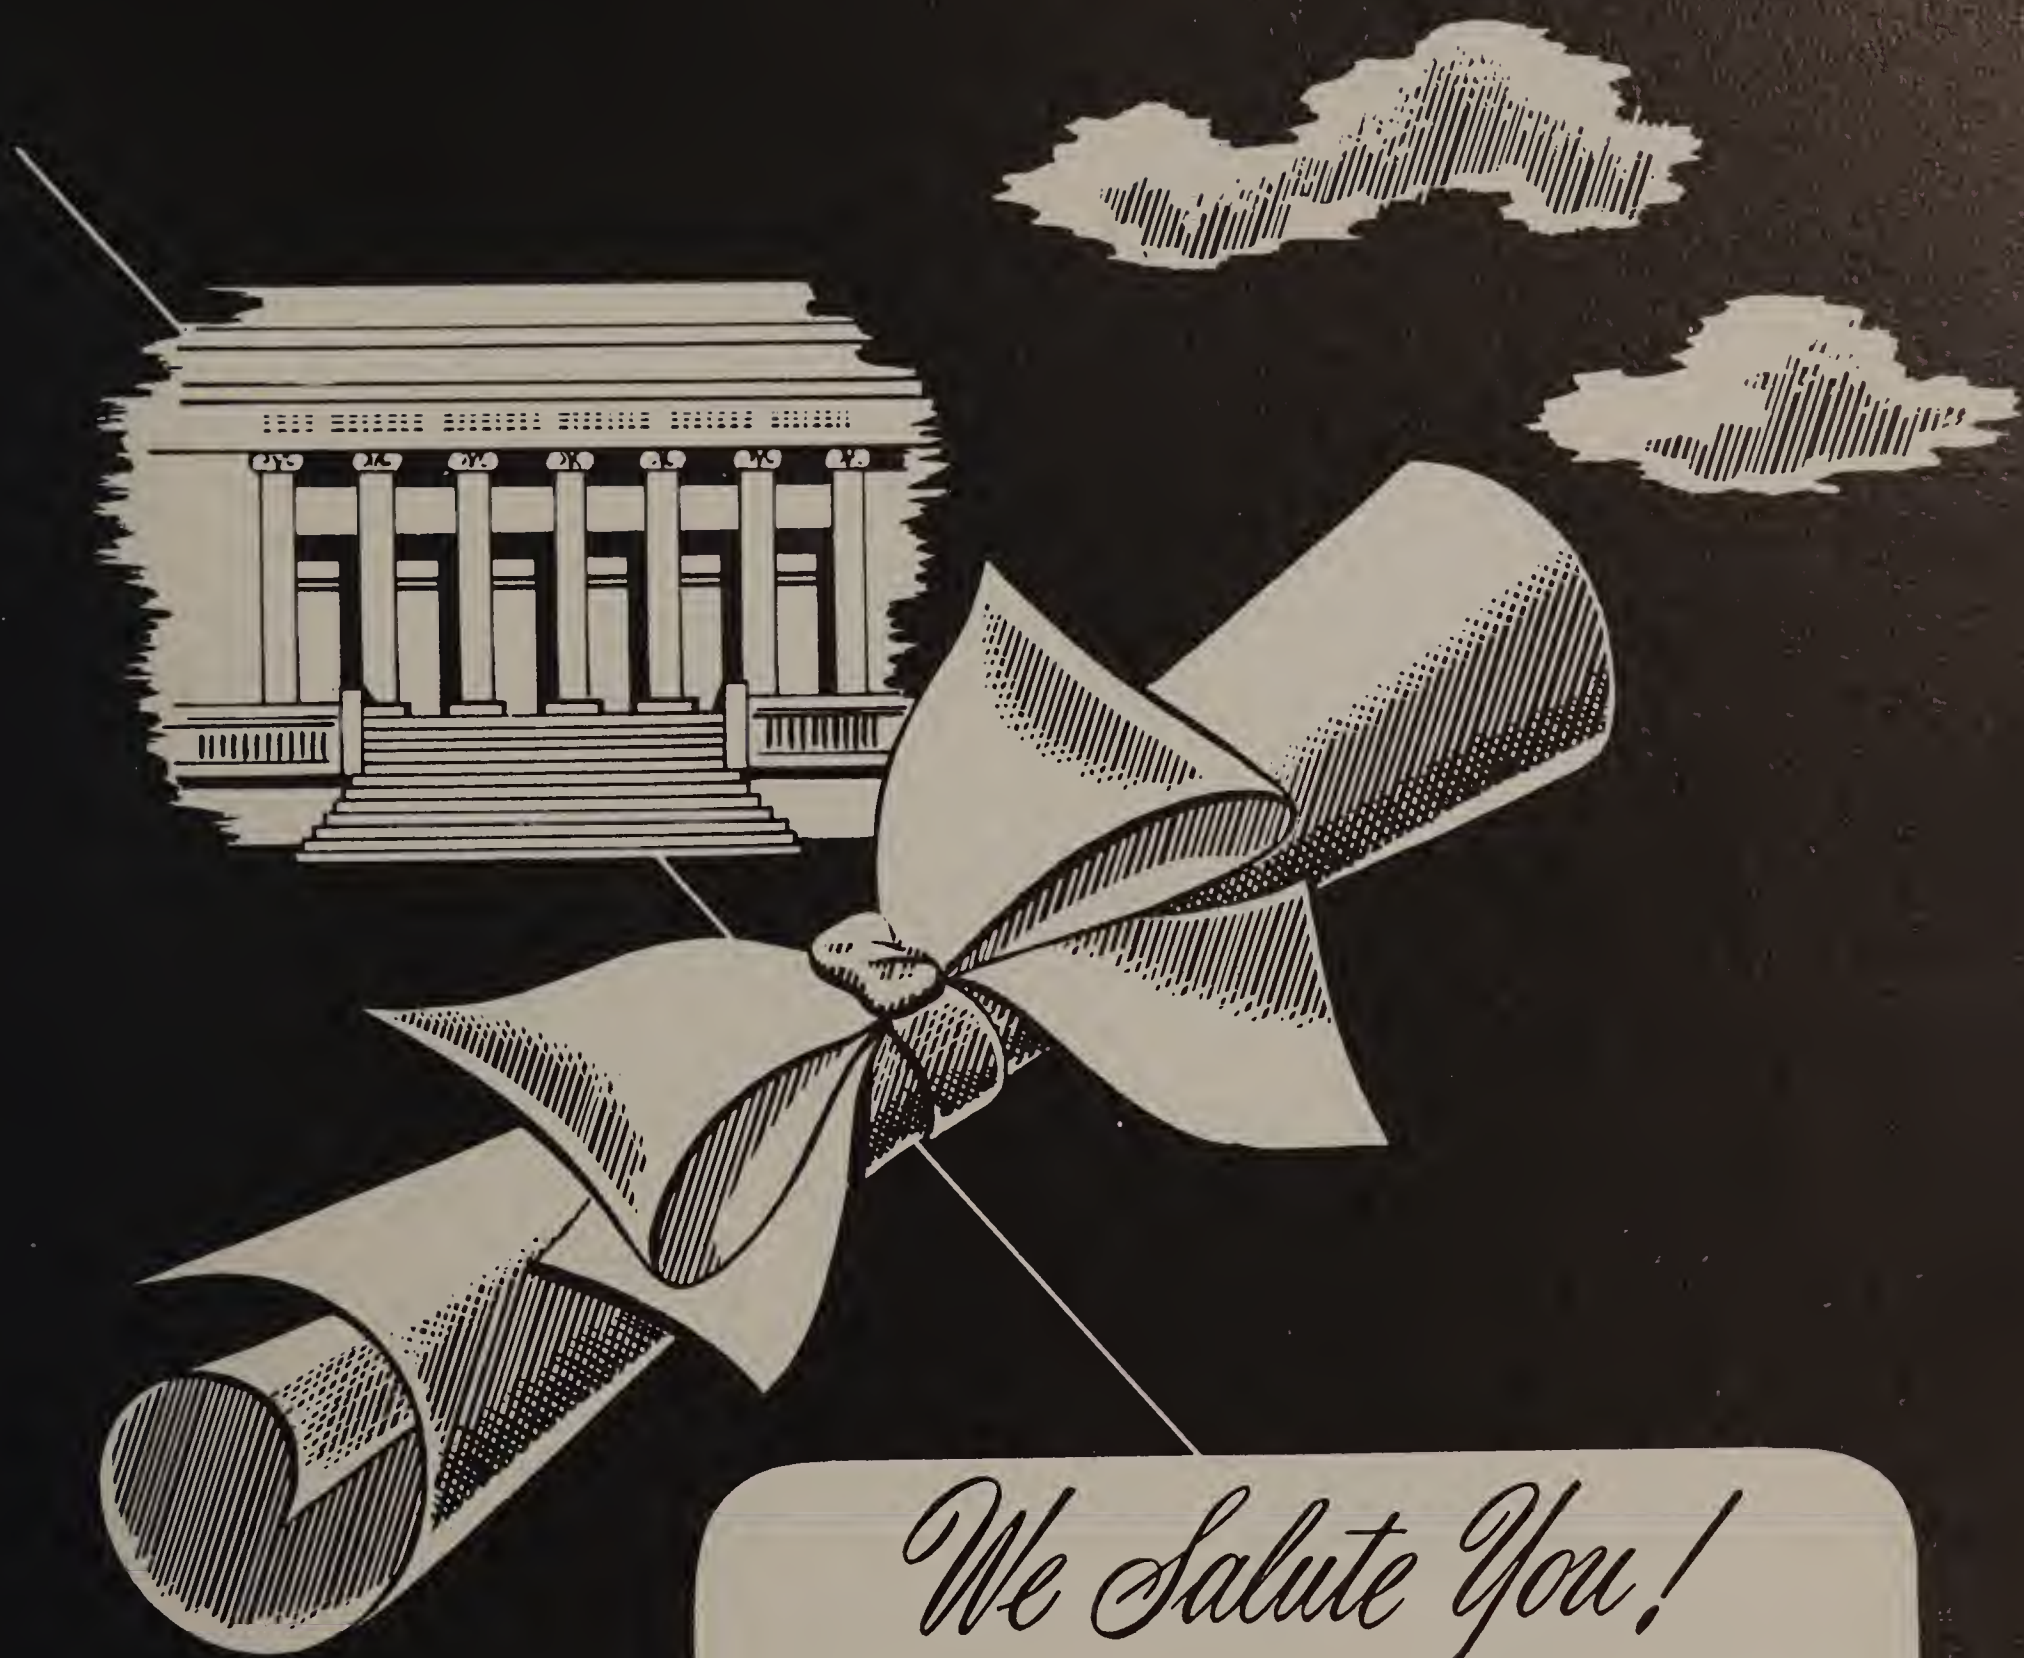

II. See your Guidance Counselor

She'll tell you when and where you can apply for an interview to find out what the "hereafter's" like at
